In the middle of the night, I woke up with a start and saw that a figure in a dark coat was standing in the doorway. I screamed at the top of my voice.

When we describe specific incidents in the past, we use narrative tenses, i.e. the past simple, past continuous, and past perfect simple or continuous.

- We use the past simple to talk about the main actions in a story (We went to bed..., I woke up..., I screamed).
- We use the past continuous to set the scene (We were sleeping in my parents' bedroom) and to describe actions in progress in the past (Somebody was standing in the doorway).
- We use the past perfect and the past perfect continuous to talk about the earlier past, i.e. things which happened before the main event (My father had gone away..., I had been reading a story).

used to and would: describing habitual events and repeated actions in the past

- 1 We often use used to + infinitive as an alternative to the past simple to talk about things that we did repeatedly in the past.
- We can also use used to + infinitive to talk about situations or states which have changed, e.g. I used to have much longer hair when I was younger.
- 2 We use would + infinitive as an alternative to used to to talk about things that we did repeatedly in the past over a period of time.
- We don't use would with stative verbs, i.e. to talk about situations or states which have changed. NOT I would have much longer hair when I was younger.
- We don't use would without a time reference, e.g. I used to play the violin. NOT I would play the violin.
- 3 We can also use always + past continuous for things that happened repeatedly, especially when they were irritating habits.

- 1 We often use as long as / so long as, provided / providing (that), and on condition (that) instead of if to emphasize what must happen or be done for something else to happen.
 - that is often omitted in spoken English. on condition (that) is slightly more formal than the other expressions.
- 2 We can use whether + subject + verb + or not instead of if to emphasize something is true in either of two cases.
 - The word order can also be: I'm going to sell the car whether or not you agree with me.

 - 2 We can use should have or ought to have + past participle to talk about past events which did not happen and which we regret.
 - 3 had better is stronger and more urgent than should / ought to and is often used to give strong advice or a warning. It normally refers to the immediate future.
 - The negative is had better not NOT ~~hadn't better~~ mustn't / don't have to

 - 2 When we want to say that something is unnecessary on a specific occasion, we can also use needn't + infinitive without to.
 - 3 When something was not necessary, but you did it, you can use either needn't have + past participle or didn't need to + infinitive.
 - 4 When something was not necessary, so you did not do it, you must use didn't need to. Compare:

- 1 We often use person + be able to or be allowed to + infinitive instead of can to talk about what is possible or permitted.
 - 2 it + be permitted to + infinitive is used in formal situations, e.g. notices and announcements, to say what can / can't be done according to the law or to rules and regulations.
 - We don't use it isn't allowed to... NOT ~~it isn't allowed to take phones into the exam room.~~
 - 3 We can also use be supposed to / be meant to + infinitive to say what people should or shouldn't do, often because of rules. There is often a suggestion that the rules are not necessarily obeyed, e.g. Students are not supposed / meant to have guests after 12.00, but everyone does.

 I can't taste the garlic in the soup.

- The five basic verbs of the senses, see, hear, smell, feel, and taste are stative (non-action) verbs and are not normally used in the continuous form.
- We normally use can with these verbs to refer to something happening at the moment, instead of the present continuous, e.g.
I can smell burning. NOT I'm smelling burning.

- We often use see / hear + object + verb in the infinitive. This means you saw or heard the whole action.
- We can also use see / hear + object + gerund. In this case the meaning is slightly different, meaning you saw / heard an action in progress or a repeated action.
- The distinction above also applies to verbs after watch, feel, notice, and listen.

- When we talk about the impression something or someone gives us through the senses, we use look, feel, smell, sound, and taste followed by an adjective, like + noun or as if / as though + clause.
- Nowadays like is often used as an alternative to as if / as though e.g. It looks like it's going to rain.

It smells / tastes of... (= it has that smell / taste)

- 2 We use a perfect gerund (having done) or a perfect infinitive (to have done) if we want to emphasize that an action is completed or in the past.
 - Often there is no difference between using a simple gerund or infinitive and a perfect gerund or infinitive, e.g.
He denied stealing / having stolen the money.
It was our fault. We were silly not to lock / not to have locked the car.
- 3 We use the perfect infinitive after would like, would love, would hate, would prefer, and would rather to talk about an earlier action. Compare:
I would like to see the Eiffel Tower. (= when I go to Paris in the future)
I would like to have seen the Eiffel Tower. (= I was in Paris, but I didn't see it)

- 2 after nouns formed from verbs which take the infinitive, e.g. agree, plan, hope, etc.
- 3 after expressions with quantifiers, e.g. enough, too much, a lot, plenty of, etc.
When we want to refer to the subject of the infinitive verb we use for + person or object pronoun before the infinitive. This can be used before any infinitive structure, e.g. after adjectives: It's very difficult for me to decide.
- 4 after something, anywhere, etc.
- 5 after question words (except why).
- 6 after superlatives and first, second, last, etc., e.g. Who was the first person to walk on the moon?

Will we be having dinner at the usual time?
This time tomorrow I'll be flying to Mexico.
- 4 The train leaves in five minutes. Our classes start next Tuesday.

- 1 The present continuous is the most common way to talk about arrangements, i.e. fixed plans for the future, when the time and place have been decided.
- 2 be going to is the most common way to express future plans and intentions and to imply that a decision has been made.
- When we talk about the future from the point of view of a time in the past, we use was / were going to, e.g. We were a bit worried about what the weather was going to be like.

 be going to or the present continuous?

In most cases we can use either be going to or the present continuous without much difference in meaning. However, the present continuous emphasizes that a time and place to do something has been decided, while be going to emphasizes the intention. Compare:

I'm seeing Sarah tomorrow. (= it's our arrangement)

I'm going to give her a birthday present. (= it's my intention)

We do not use the present continuous when it is clear that something is only an intention, but no arrangements have been made, e.g. I'm going to talk to Mike about it when I next see him.

NOT I'm talking to Mike about it...

- 3 The future continuous can often be used instead of the present continuous to refer to future arrangements.
- We sometimes use the future continuous to emphasize that we are talking about something that will happen anyway rather than something we have arranged. Compare:
I'm seeing Sarah tomorrow. (= I have arranged it)
I'll be seeing Sarah at the party tomorrow. (= it will happen anyway, but I didn't arrange it)
- It is often used to make polite enquiries about arrangements, e.g. Will you be meeting us at the airport?
- We also use the future continuous to say that an action will be in progress at a certain time in the future.
- 4 We can use the present simple to talk about future events which are part of a timetable or a regular schedule.

other ways of expressing future arrangements

- 1 My sister is due to arrive at 7.30. Can you meet her at the station?
- 2 My daughter is about to have a baby, so I'm getting ready to go and stay with her.
- 3 It has been announced that the Prime Minister is to visit Malaysia next month.

- 1 be due to + infinitive can be used to say that something is arranged or expected at a certain time. This is a more formal style.
- We also use due on its own to mean 'expected', e.g. The next train is due in five minutes.
- 2 We use be about to + infinitive to say that something is going to happen very soon, but without giving a specific time.
- We can also use be on the point of + gerund with a similar meaning, but this is slightly more formal and implies something is more imminent, e.g. It is believed that the Chancellor is on the point of resigning.
- 3 We can use be + to + infinitive in a formal style to talk about official plans and arrangements.

- a Circle the correct form. Tick (✓) if both are possible.

- 1 With positive clauses, we often use so instead of repeating a whole clause after verbs of thinking (assume, believe, expect, guess, hope, imagine, presume, reckon, suppose, think) and also after be afraid, appear / seem, and say.
 - I hope so. = I hope I'll have finished the work by Friday.
- 2 With negative clauses, we can use a $\oplus$ verb + not or a $\ominus$ verb + so.
 - We normally use a $\oplus$ verb + not with be afraid, assume, guess, hope, presume, and suspect, e.g. I hope not.
 - We normally use a $\ominus$ verb + so with think, e.g. I don't think so.
 - With other verbs (appear, believe, expect, imagine, seem, and suppose) we can use either form, e.g.

nouns: compound and possessive forms

apostrophe s

- 1 The company's head office is in New York. I borrowed Chris's car. It's my friends' wedding. That's the children's room.
- 2 The blonde girl is Alex and Maria's daughter.
- 3 We had dinner at Tom's last night. My mother is at the hairstylist's.
- 4 They played terribly in last Saturday's match. She's got ten years' experience as a primary teacher.

- Possessive forms express the idea of 'having' (in a very general sense) which exists between two nouns.
- 1 We normally use a possessive noun (+ 's) when something belongs to or is a characteristic of a particular person (people) or thing (things).
 - 2 If there are two people, we put the 's on the second name.
 - If we are referring to things belonging to two separate people, we put the 's on both names, e.g. John's and Kay's tastes in food are completely different.
 - 3 When 's refers to premises, e.g. 'the house of' or 'the shop of', we often omit, e.g. house or shop.
 - 4 We often use 's or s' with time expressions, e.g. yesterday's news, an hour's journey.

using of (instead of apostrophe s)

- 1 Can you remember the name of the film? My brother lives at the end of the road. The problems of old age are many and varied.
- 2 Helen is the sister of my cousin in Rome I told you about.
- 3 Jack is a friend of my brother's.

- 1 We normally use an of phrase, not 's, with things or abstract nouns.
- 2 We tend to use of and not 's to express possession with a long phrase, e.g. NOT my cousin in Rome I told you about's sister.
- 3 With friend, colleague, etc. we often say, e.g. a friend of + name / noun + 's (= one of my brother's friends).
 - We also often use a possessive pronoun after a friend of..., e.g. a friend of mine / hers.

- 1 I need the tin opener. Do you know where it is? I bought a huge plant pot in a garden centre near my house. My brother is a company director and my sister is a history teacher. I opened the car door, got in, and put on my seat belt.
- 2 I bought my son a new story book. What does that road sign mean?
- 3 There was a bottle of wine on the table and two wine glasses.

- 1 We use compound nouns to express many common ideas in English. The first noun modifies or describes the second noun. tin opener = an opener for tins, history teacher = a teacher of history. The first noun is usually singular, unless it has no singular form, e.g. clothes, but the second noun can be singular or plural.

One word, two words, or hyphenated?

Compound nouns are usually two separate words, but they are sometimes joined together as one word, e.g. sunglasses, bathroom, or occasionally hyphenated, e.g. role-play.

- 2 We use compound nouns to describe a common class of object or person. Compare:
 - a story book BUT a book about house decoration
 - a road sign BUT a sign of the times
- 3 With containers, a compound noun (e.g. a wine bottle) focuses on the container (usually empty), whereas the container + possessive noun (a bottle of wine) focuses on the contents.
 - Other common examples are a wine glass / a glass of wine, a jam jar / a jar of jam, a petrol can / a can of petrol, a coffee cup / a cup of coffee, etc.

- When we want to focus attention on or emphasize one part of a sentence, we can do this by adding certain words or phrases to the beginning of the sentence. This is sometimes called a 'cleft sentence'.

- We can make some kinds of sentences more emphatic by beginning with What (= the thing) or All (= the only thing) + clause + be and then the part of the sentence we want to emphasize.
- To emphasize an event or sequence of events, we can begin with What happens is (that)... / What happened was (that)...

- We can also use It is / was + the emphasized part of the sentence + a relative clause.

🔍 It was me who... or It was I who...?

In informal spoken English, if the emphasized part is a pronoun, we normally use the object pronoun after It is / was, e.g. I paid the bill. – It was me who paid the bill.
